

Seminar Series

RESPIRABLE CRYSTALLINE SILICA

OUTLINE

This seminar will cover the following topics:

- Occurrence and properties of respirable crystalline silica (RCS)
- Exposure sources of RCS
- Health effects of RCS
- Exposure standards for RCS
- Exposure risk and incidence of disease
- Sampling and analytical methods and limits of detection
- Health surveillance
- Control of exposure to RCS
- The future for RCS – will it go the way of asbestos?

PRESENTERS

GERARD TIERNAN - Gerard is the Health Surveillance Unit Manager with the Department of Mines & Energy in Queensland. He has over 20 years experience in occupational hygiene, principally in the mining industry. He was with Mount Isa Mines in Mount Isa and then with Simtars as a hygiene consultant before taking up his current position last year. Gerard is a Certified Industrial Hygienist (CIH) with the American Board of Industrial Hygiene, and a COH and Fellow of the AIOH. He was principal author of the AIOH position paper on respirable crystalline silica.

LINDA APTHORPE - Linda has a background in chemistry and microbiology and has been working in occupational hygiene since 1994. As General Manager at Pickford & Rhyder Consulting in Sydney, she provides consultancy and laboratory services to a wide variety of workplaces. Pickford & Rhyder Consulting is NATA accredited for conducting respirable quartz analysis. Linda is a Full Member and COH of the AIOH and has recently completed her Certificate IV in Training and Assessment.

PARTICIPANTS

This seminar is aimed at occupational hygienists and other Safety, Health and Environment professionals who have an interest in silica exposures.
