✓ DO

Individual Members

- Use your post-nominals (MAIOH, FAIOH, COH) in email signatures, business cards, CVs and reports once formally confirmed by AIOH.
- Write Certified Occupational Hygienist (COH)[®] at first mention in a document.
- Use COH (without ®) after the first mention in the same document.
- Use the AIOH logo on your personal business cards, email formal & letter signatures (Provisional, Full and Fellow only).
- Use the COH Seal on reports and formal documents if you are an active, financial COH member.
- Request logo use approval in writing before using the logo on promotional material.
- Keep your MYAIOH profile up to date; your post-nominal, badges and public listing depend on it.

✗ DON'T

Individual Members

- Don't display another member's Badge ID; assigned to one individual only.
- Don't continue displaying your post-nominals or Badge ID if your membership lapses, is suspended retired or is cancelled.
- Don't use the AIOH logo on company websites, brochures or company reports (that doesn't relate to the member specifically).
- Don't imply your employer or company is endorsed, accredited or affiliated with AIOH because you are an AIOH member.
- Don't write COH[®] as a standalone post-nominal; the ® belongs to the full title Certified Occupational Hygienist (COH)[®] only.
- Don't use the COH Seal if your COH status has lapsed, been suspended, or if you have applied for Retired COH status.
- Don't alter, recolour, crop or modify the AIOH logo in any way.
- Don't use post-nominals or the logo before AIOH has formally confirmed membership.

✓ DO

Corporate Partners & Sponsors

- Use your approved AIOH corporate partner badge for your tier on your website, approved materials as outlined in policy.
- State: '[Organisation] is a [Level] Corporate Partner of the Australian Institute of Occupational Hygienists (AIOH)'.
- Allow individual employees to display their own personal AIOH post-nominals in their email signatures and reports.
- Label any content submitted to AIOH channels clearly as: 'Sponsored Content, [Organisation Name]'.
- Include the required disclaimer on all materials: 'Corporate partnership with AIOH does not constitute product endorsement, testing, certification, or recommendation by AIOH' (product suppliers).
- Remove all AIOH badges and references promptly upon expiry, suspension or termination of the corporate relationship.

✗ DON'T

Corporate Partners & Sponsors

- Don't use the AIOH primary logo without express prior written permission from the AIOH Council.
- Don't place any AIOH badge adjacent to product claims or specifications in a way that implies AIOH endorsement or certification of that product.
- Don't state or imply AIOH has approved, certified or endorsed your organisation, products or staff.
- Don't display COH Seals or use COH, MAIOH or FAIOH as though they are company credentials.
- Don't submit comparative product claims, performance data comparisons or competitive advertising to AIOH channels.
- Don't use expired or lapsed AIOH recognition in marketing, websites, tender documents or public statements.
- Don't attempt to influence AIOH policy, certification, governance or editorial decisions through the corporate relationship.

Non-Compliance Consequences

Individual members: written notice, ethics review, suspension or termination of membership, and/or legal action.

Corporate partners: written warning, benefit restriction, suspension, non-renewal, termination for cause, and/or public correction by AIOH

Third parties (not entitled to use): legal action, costs will be passed to the user.

The AIOH office will contact members or companies to address any instances of non-compliance. Please action requests promptly.

Typical Correct Placement, Cover Page

On the cover page or title block of a report, the AIOH logo should sit alongside the author's name, post-nominals, and Badge ID in the 'Prepared by' section. It does not need to appear elsewhere on the cover.

 [Company / Organisation Header, Company logo and branding goes here] This area belongs to the employer or client. The AIOH logo does NOT appear here.

COH Members, Adding the COH Seal

COH members may also include their COH Seal on reports and formal documents. The COH Seal is placed adjacent to the author's name and credentials, in the same location as the AIOH logo. The COH Seal identifies the individual practitioner's certification level.

Employed Members, Reports on Company Letterhead.

If a member prepares reports on their employer's letterhead or company template, the company's own header and branding takes the top of the document. The AIOH logo appears only in the 'Prepared by' section alongside the member's name, not in the company header area.

The company's own header may include the company logo, name, and contact details, that is the company's branding.

The AIOH logo appears separately in the author/credentials section, clearly identifying the individual member. Never place the AIOH logo in the company header area, this would imply AIOH endorses or accredits the company.

If the report template has no dedicated author section, add one: 'Prepared by: [Name] [Post-nominals] [Badge ID] [AIOH Logo]'
