The Australian and New Zealand Society of Occupational Medicine (ANZSOM) invites you to their 2020 Annual Scientific Meeting, 'Exploring the new normal in workplace health' to be held virtually from 19-22 November 2020.

A diverse and interactive program is planned across the four days, balancing “Zoom” time with an opportunity to explore our Virtual Exhibition and network with colleagues through face to face and online social events.

Reflecting the current priorities in workplace health, the program will feature three sessions devoted to COVID-19 risks and management, with a Keynote Address from Professor Brett Sutton, Victoria’s Chief Health Officer.

We will also offer virtual site visits for the first time, an online Journal Club and a range of topical presentations, all designed to get you involved. Refer overleaf to view the Program at a Glance.

Registration ($295 for ANZSOM/AFOEM members, $375 for non-members) includes live access to all sessions over the four days, plus 3 months access to the session recordings post-event
